ESCAPE OF THE TRANSYLVANIA

Anchor Liner Reaches Glasgow After Thrilling Experience

CHASED BY TORPEDO

Zigzag Course of Steamer Rendered it Impossible for German Submarine to Strike Her

London, May 18—The Anchor liner Transylvania, carrying 879 passengers, narrowly escaped the same fate as the Lusitania, according to passengers who arrived here today from Glasgow.

A German submarine shot a torpedo at the Transylvania Sunday afternoon, they asserted, the death missle passing forty yards astern.

"I was standing, with two others on the Transylvania's forward deck about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon," said Walter R. Burston, of Kent, who was returning to England from Jerome, Ariz. "One of the other passengers spied the periscope of a submarine and caled out attention to it.

"An instant later there was a flash through the water and we saw the white wake of a torpedo. It passed, as near as I can estimate, about forty yards astern.

"We did not want to alarm the other passengers, but sent word to Captain Black on the bridge. The Transylvania immediately adopted a zig zaggy course. She continued rushing about in this manner for several hours, careening from side to side in an alarming manner."

Burston's statement was corroborated by Kenneth Douglas, an actor in the "Silk Stockings" Company, who also arrived here from Glasgow aboard the 6 o'clock train.

Burston said that the Transylvania, which sailed from New York on the same day the Lusitania was sunk, was in midocean before her passengers learned that any lives had been lost aboard the big Cunarder Lusitania.

"An hour before the Transylvania sailed, New York newspapers carried the rumor that the Lusitania had been torpedoed" said Burston, "but they also had reports that she had been beached without loss of life.

LOSS WILL REACH $100,000

Eleven Buildings Destroyed by Fire at Tallassee, Ala.

Montgomery, Ala., May 18—Yesterday's checking up of the fire losses at Tallassee, Ala., Sunday night shows that the total will reach $100,000. Eleven buildings were destroyed by the blaze, which started in a meat market, supposedly from spontaneous combustion. Among the eleven buildings destroyed was the Bank of Tallassee which was completely destroyed, the vaults, however, protecting the funds. Fire protection was inadequate, and bucket brigades saved what few buildings now remain.

DEPARTURE OF FLEET.

Executive Leaves at Two O'clock This Afternoon on His Return Voyage to Washington.

New York, May 18—President Wilson and New York said good-by to the Atlantic fleet today. The steel jacketed "force of humanity" ended its holiday and left for the annual war game at sea.

The departure of the fleet was the final and most spectacular event of the review. A perfect spring day added to the inspiring spectacle. Brilliant rays of the sun swept away the banks of rain and mist which marred the pageant yesterday.

The statue of liberty and lower harbor were the scenes of the farewell to the armada.

Because of the tide a later start was made than scheduled. The "weigh anchor" order was set for 10:30 with the review by the President on the Mayflower, off the Statue of Liberty an hour later.

The huge gray dreadnaughts were stripped today of their gay strings of pennants. Boatswains' crews were busy rounding up stragglers overstaying shore leave. Donkey engines puffed and screeched as they swung launches and tenders on board.

Riverside Drive, the Battery, and eevry point of vantage on the Hudson river, was crowded with spectators. The roadstead was swept clear of small craft and ferryboats at 10 o'clock.

The Mayflower, bearing the President and his party, acting Mayor McEneny, and other official guests, left its anchorage at 10:13 escorted by torpedo destroyers, the Dolphin, Isis and Yankton, Anchoring off the Statue of Liberty, the reviewing flotilla tossed out streams of pennants and bunting and lined up to await the passage of the fleet.

Admiral Fletcher's flagship, the Wyoming, followed by the New York, Texas, and other battleships, and then the destroyers and smaller craft, steamed past the reviewing squadron in single file at ten knots speed.

As each ship brested the Mayflower the Presidential salute of twenty-one guns boomed out.

The shattering booms of the battleships were followed by the sharp barking staccato of the lighter guns on the smaller craft.

Crews "dressed ship" lining the rail and outlining turrents in a human fringe of blue, as they sailed past the Mayflower. Bands of each played the "Star-Spangled Banner," returned in kind by musicians of the Mayflower and Dolphin.

The President stood in the waist of the Mayflower, close to the rail, and doffed his hat continually as strains of the national anthem came from each successve ship.

The revewing ships were swept by filaments of smoke, which piled up in banks about the "bronze Goddess."

Not until the fleet was well down the harbor did the reviewing party leave its post.

After setting ashore the President's guests, the Mayflower was scheduled to sail shortly after 2 o'clock for Washington, which will be reached early Thursday morning after a slow jaunt down the coast.

Miss Margaret Wilson joined the Mayflower party today for the trip home. Because of seasickness on the way here, Secretary Tumulty left it, to go home by train.

KILLED FROM AMBUSH

Fayettesvile, N. C., May 18.—This city was stirred yesterday morning by the finding of James Faircloth, a young man of 19 years, in a dying condition in one of the suburbs. He had been shot through the breast. He died from the wound.

From what could be learned from the young man, he had been waylaid while en route home from a school entertainment and shot from ambush. He was unable to give any clue as to his assailants.

Whether or not he was in any way connected with a feud of last week, in which two young men were seriously wounded, the police have been unable so far to ascertain. Young Faircloth is a member of one of the most prominent families in this section of the state.

The Martha Washington Chapter, No. 42, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Masonic Temple. There will be an initiation.

SECOND REVOLT IN PORTUGAL

President of New Cabinet Shot on Railway Train Last Night

COUNTRY IS IN CHAOS

Recent Riotous Scenes Which Had Been Suppressed, Break Out Again More Furious Than Ever

Madrid, May 18—With a fresh revolution in Lisbon and neighboring cities, the situation in Portugal today is described as "very critical" in a dispatch to the Spanish minister of the interior.

So many conflicting reports have been received that it is impossible as yet to give authentic information concerning the shooting of Jose Chagas, the new prime minister, by Senator Freitas.

One message said that the premier had already died from his wounds. Another, from Lisbon, said he was alive and might recover. He probably will lose the sight of his right eye, however, it was asserted in this dispatch. A third had it that he was alive late last night, but would die within a few hours.

Chagas was shot four times his skull being fractured, while on his way from Oporto to become the head of the new government. His assailant was killed by gendarmes.

The Spanish government is endeavoring to communicate with the commander of the Spanish battleship Espana, supposed to have arrived off Lisbon harbor. If reports of new disturbances are true, he will be instructed to land marines to protect Spanish and other foreigners.

All dispatches from the Portuguese capital were greatly delayed today.

Grave fears for the safety of civilians in the Portuguese capital were expressed by Spanish officials today. The last dispatch from Lisbon said the revolutionary committee had promised immediate execution of persons attempting to stir up trouble.

FIGHT CATHOLIC CONTROL.

Protest Against Bill to Bar Menace From Mails.

Houston, Texas, May 18.—The Southern Baptist Convention here yesterday unanimously adopted resolutions of protest against "the bill introduced, but not passed, at the last session of Congress prohibiting the transportation by United States mails of all publications which are or are represented to be a reflection on any form of religious worship practiced by any citizen of the United States." The bill was aimed at the Menace, an anti-Catholic organ.

In these resolutions also were incorporated those passed at the sixty-ninth convention, in which the convention stated:

"We view with alarm and vigorously protest against the efforts of the Roman Catholic hierarchy to gain control of our government and deplore the presence of a papal legate as representative of the Vatican at our national capital for the purpose of influencing our governmental affairs."

"We also protest against the presence of national representatives at ecclesiastical affairs and against the manifest disposition on the part of some of our politicians to show deference to so-called church dignitaries, and against the sentencing by any judge of any person to serve in a religious institution."

The report of the committee on temperance and social service declared the "beverage liquor traffic is not the only evil, and its abolition not the only needed reform." Urging other reforms, the report stated:

"So long as there is social inequality, industrial injustice or political crime you and I have a message and a mission."

Under other needed reforms were grouped children's work in factories, long hours in sweatshops, temptations to young girls working for meager salaries, crowded tenements, tenantry conditions on farms and impure politics.

The "death knell of rum in America has sounded," according to the report, which asked the convention to indorse "every principle, act and movement looking to the abolition of the beverage liquor traffic."

The convention adjourned after discussing "central control" of the Anti-saloon League of America, which came up as the result of a report on temperance and social service.

The report, as adopted, pledged co-operation to the league and other similar organizations.

BRITISH CAPTURE GERMAN TRENCHES

Field Marshal Sir John French Tells of Latest Success

TAKE TWO-MILE FRONT

Probably as Important in Territory Won as Was the Recent French Advance in Flanders

London, May 18—Field Marshal Sir John French in a message informs the British people that their troops again had taken the offensive, after a fortnight spent in hurling back German attacks, and had swept across and captured all German trenches south of Richebough L'Avoue, over a two mile front.

This movement, which has resulted in the capture of numerous prisoners is still under way, and gives indication of being as important in the matter of territory won as was the recent French advance. Elsewhere along the western battle front a lull prevails.

London, May 18—Field Marshal Sir John French, Commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary forces in France sends a report, under date of May 17, to the War Department here as follows:

"The First Army has gained further successes south of Richebourg L'Avoue, and all the German trenches on a front of two miles were captured.

"This morning several bodies of Germans surrendered voluntarily to our troops, who continued to fight with great gallantry and determination. One of these bodies, while trying to surrender, was caught by German artillery fire and practically annihilated.

"The exact number of prisoners has not yet been ascertained, but 550 have been cleared to the lines of communication.

"On the remainder of the front there have been no incidents to report."

Paris, May 18—The official communication issued by the French War Office announces the capture by the British troops of several additional German trenches to the north of La Bassee together with 1000 prisoners.

In an engagement at Ville-Sur-Tourbe the French took 400 prisoners and in an attack at the Ailly woods carried several German works and captured 250 prisoners.

AMERICA'S NAVAL EVENT.

The naval parade in New York yesterday was an interesting event in our history. It was reviewed by President Wilson in the presence of thousands of persons who had gathered from every section of the United States. It was not planned as a menace to other countries, but partook more of a Fourth of July celebration, or, to bring it closer home, to an old-time Twenty-second of February turnout in Alexandria, when our military companies appeared on dress parade with war one of the fatherest things from their thoughts.

President Wilson's speech was well-conceived and well-delivered, and he left a number of practical and sensible thoughts in the minds of his hearers. Among other things he said, "our navy is not a threat, but an ideal. The United States wants no territory. The flag typifies all that is best in the world, and the fleet is a solemn evidence that the force of America is a force of moral principle."

Our fleet, to which we are constantly adding, might be likened to the many popular orders of our day. The members are experts in tactics and they appear in public in brilliant uniforms and bearing swords, but their principles are those of peace, and while their arms and paraphernalia are always glittering, their swords remain in their scabbards.

Our Junior United States Senator made a forceful speech in the upper House of Congress recently for a large navy. The Gazette fully agreed with all he uttered on this line. Mr. Swanson did not advocate an enlargement of the navy as a threat to any other nation nor for the purpose of making encroachments upon other peoples. But a nation which is now one of the first of the earth should not be deficient in anything which is regarded as an essential to our marvelous growth.

Times, however, are not always tranquil. There are occasions when demonstrations are necessary to prevent clashes of arms. The great British navy has often brought peace by its mere appearance without firing a gun. While a naval parade is an innocent pastime, it is, as Mr. Wilson said, a solemn evidence that the force of the country is a force of moral principles.

In ante bellum days the navy of the United States consisted of a few wooden vessels which had long outlived their day of usefulness, and when the war between the states was precipitated side-wheel steamboats and tugs were converted into men-of-war. Such a parody upon a navy has long since been superseded by the best and most powerful ships of war the world can devise. We are not bent upon ruling the waves, but, like the late Southern Confederacy, we want to be let-alone.

DANGER OF REPUBLICS.

The frightful scenes now being enacted in Portugal show that the people of every nation are not capable of governing themselves. The republic is but a few years old, it having succeeded the monarchy which was abolished when the king, queen and crown prince were slain. A second revolution has followed closely in the wake of the first eruption, in which several hundred persons have been killed and the capital city of the country bombarded by mutiniers.

Dispatches today say all is chaos in Lisbon. The storm clouds still hang low over the country while the president of the new cabinet, who was shot on a train, is slowly dying in a hospital.

A republican form of government has been a success in the United States for a hundred and thirty-nine years. It has not, however, proved a panacea for political evils in other countries. France has moved along under a republic during the past forty-four years, but the temperament of that people is capricious and troubles have been narrowly averted at times.

There is practically no such thing as autocracy on the globe at this time. So-called monarchies are really representative governments. China, Turkey, Portugal and Persia have passed from monarchies to republics in recent years. But there have been chronic troubles in those countries ever since from the fact that the people were not prepared for such transitions.

It is unfortunately so with Portugal. The people of that country made their change by slaughter, and they are reaping what they sowed.

The history of South America shows how impractical it is for certain nations to adopt self-governments. Mexicans have shed seas of blood in attempts to govern themselves, and they are today as far from their ideal as ever. The history of Portugal may be written in that of our sister nation.

OUR RELATIONS WITH GERMANY.

The dispatch from United States Ambassador Gerard in Berlin to the State Department in Washington has brought optimism to officials. While some persons in this country prefer to believe that the President's representations to the Kaiser will be met with obduracy, others are inclined to the belief that he will carefully weigh all that Mr. Wilson has set forth and that the answer will not be one of defiance. If present indications are not illusory, there is reason to believe that the two countries, after the usual diplomatic exchanges, will continue their friendly relations. It is stated that the tone of the American note pleases Count von Jagow, the German Foreign Minister.

While German animosity against the nations now warring against the Fatherland is naturally at fever heat, we do not believe the German people are incensed against the United States, and there is every reason to believe that, in scriptural language, they are ready to respond to the invitation, "Come, let us reason together."

NEWS OF THE DAY

Six thousand Armenians have been massacred at Van, in Armenia, Asiatic Turkey.

Attempts to settle the tram strike in London, have failed, and practically no cars are running.

The Swedish steamer Bjoern, bound for London with a cargo of foodstuffs has been seized by a German submarine and taken into Hamburg.

Some thousands of miners in the Black Country, of England, went on strike yesterday in consequence of a dispute over the question of a war bonus.

Ralph E. Milburn, 45 years old, was run down and killed by a Chesapeake and Ohio Railway train near Seventeenth and Washington streets, Richmond, early yesterday morning.

Russell Pethrick, held as a suspect by the police in the killing of Mrs. Coppersmith and her child about a week ago, in Chicago, late yesterday afternoon confessed the murder.

Two children were killed and a woman was wounded by bombs dropped upon Calais by a Zeppelin Sunday night. The Zeppelin was brought down later and its crew of 40 men captured.

Breaking away from the grasp of his bride of two weeks, D. S. Pancoast, wealthy Philadelphian, son-in-law of C. F. Alms, a wealthy Cincinnati merchant, leaped from the third-story of the Chelsea, Hotel in Atlanta, Ga., yesterday. He was dead when picked up.

Joseph E Grant, Jr., 12 years old, shot and instantly killed himself yesterday afternoon while playing with his father's revolver at his home, in Washington. Young Grant was the son of Detective Sergeant Joseph E. Grant.

J. Edwards Addicks, former United States Senator from Delaware, known as "Gas Addicks" from his connection with the Bay State's Gas Company, spent Sunday in Ludlow Street Jail, New York, in default of $18,000 bail. He was paroled yesterday in the custody of a deputy sheriff until today when he is expected to furnish the bail.

Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British army in France and Belgium, has advised his government that the allies' troops have captured all the German trenches along the two-mile front south of Richebourg and Lavoue. A body of Germans who were about to surrender were caught by the artillery fire from the German ranks and were practically annihilated.

"The German accounts of victory are greatly exaggerated. The Russian line has not been pierced but only bent back. The German accounts of the demoralized condition of the Czar's troops are highly colored. The retirement was conducted in good order under heavy rear-guard fighting. All the Austrian advances on the east of the Russian line have been thrown back. Reserves are hurrying to General Radko Demetrieff, and a counter attack is expected soon."

The enemies of Giosue Galluci, perhaps the most influential and one of the wealthiest Italians in the country, finally "got him" in New York last night. They had killed at least ten of his bodyguards in the last few years in their efforts to slay him, and he had been wounded many times, but last night they sent a bullet through his stomach and another through his neck. At Bellevue Hospital it was said he could not recover.

VIRGINIA NEWS

On what may prove her last voyage, the historic old frigate Constellation left Norfolk yesterday for Newport, R. I., in tow of the naval tug Uncas.

W. H. Camp, 69 years old, a leading business man of Petersburg, died Sunday night in a Richmond hospital. For nearly 25 years he was collector of taxes for Petersburg. He served during the Civil War in the Twelfth Virginia Regiment.

Brooding over the refusal of his father to permit him to leave home and make his own living, Augusta Putnam, 16 year old son of W. A. Putnam, an express driver, at Staunton, killed himself Sunday night, firing a bullet from a revolver entirely through the head, from ear to ear.

Four months in the Roanoke jail and a fine of $150 each was the sentence imposed by Judge King, of the Hustings Court, upon J. J. Morgan and Samuel Ballantine, who were found guilty, after a trial lasting two days, of being interested in a gambling room over a theater.

Harry Hopper, a sixteen year old Schoolfield boy, was drowned yesterday morning when he slipped from a bank on which he was sitting fishing in Dan river, and James Dale, a friend, was drowned five hours later while trying to grapple for the body of the boy.

Taylor S. Deats, 77 years old, a Confederate veteran, committed suicide Sunday at the home of his son, W. T. Deats, near Orlando, Prince William county. Deats seated himself beneath some trees in the yard, and placing a gun in front of him, pulled the trigger with his cane. The top of his head was blown off.

J. E. Banks, colored, an engineer at the plant of the Richmond Cedar Wokrs, at Norfolk, was stabbed to death Sunday afternoon near the plant. Roland Bowser, also colored, is accused of the crime. Banks, it is said, remonstrated with the other man forusing obscene language on the public highway, and Bowser drew a dirk and drove it into the other's back. Bowser escaped.

With a bullet in his chest near his heart, George Petigrew, colored, is in a serious condition at St. Vincent's Hospital, Norfolk, as a result of an attack by two unidentified negroes. Petigrew was standing in his door at 146 Wide street Sunday when he was approached by two or more colored men. One of the men demanded his money, and fired a pistol immediately after, the shot taking effect in Petigrew's breast.

The report that the German cruiser Karlsruhe came in the Virginia Capes and was at anchor in Hampton Roads is without foundation. Inquiry at the Custom House, at Old Point Comfort and at Cape Henry, resulted in the statement from all three places that neither the Karlsruhe nor any other German vessel had passed into the Capes or had been seen on the Virginia coast.

Tipton D. Jennings, 74, a former postmaster of Lynchburg, who represented the city 17 years in the House of Delegates, died yesterday. He was one of the few survivors of the Lynchburg Home Guards, who left Lynchburg with the Eleventh Virginia Regiment in 1861. At the time of his death he was inspector general of the Grand Camp Confederate Veterans of Virginia.

The initial number of "The Square Deal," the organ of the Central Trades and Labor Council, has made its first appearance in Richmond. One of the leading articles in the issue is "Organized Labor to Enter Protest Against Change in School Books." The suggestion by James E. Tyler Jr., to provide free legal advice to people who have small means and equipping an office and furnishing a library in the City Hall in Richmond for young lawyers is also endorsed and encouraged in every way.

Twelve hundred Norfolk citizens on Sunday extended the hand of welcome to the Union Mission convention when delegates representing that body gathered at the Wells theatre for the first of their series of services. Governor Henry C. Stuart for the state and Mayor Mayo for the city, bespoke a serious and kindly feeling on the part of Norfolk and Virginia for the visitors and both recalled at length the mighty works of the Gospel mission. Both expressed conviction that the deeds and the attitude of mission men represent in its best sense the love of Christ..

NAVY NOT THREAT, BUT IDEAL.

President Declares America Seeks Nothing Save in Cause of Humanity.

New York, May 18.—President Wilson delivered a patriotic address on the American flag and the protection it carries for Americans, at a luncheon given here yesterday in his honor by the New York Citizens' Committee for the Reception of the Atlantic Fleet.

When the President arose to speak, soon after reviewing the parade of sailors and marines from the fleet, he was enthusiastically cheered. Five hundred army and navy officers and other guests jumped to their feet and applaunded. All the officers were in full-dress uniform. Alton B. Parker, Jacob Schiff, Joseph H. Choate, August Belmont and many other prominent New Yorkers were among those present. Acting Mayor George McAneny introduced the President.

The President said he had always had a deep interest in the navy.

"It is right," he said, that "America should have a great navy to express its character."

The navy, he added, brought the United States in touch with the rest of the world. Secretary Daniels was warmly praised by the President. Under him, the President said, the navy had become more and more efficient. The Secretary, he declared, had his entire support.

"The navy of the United States," the President said, "expresses our ideals. The fleet lying here at New York is a great fleet and has nothing of bluster about it.

"The great thing about America is that it wants no territory and questions no other nation's honor. We stand for humanity and for the things that humanity wants."

Speaking of the flag, the President asserted that it typified all that was best in the world.

"We lift no threats against any nation or class in the United States," the President declared. "This fleet in the river is a great solemn evidence that the force of America is the force of moral principle. There is nothing else for which she will contend."

At the conclusion of his address President Wilson left the hotel to inspect the fleet lying at anchor in the Hudson river.

MAKE THE KITCHEN LIVABLE

DON'T swelter over a hot coal stove this summer. The NEW PERFECTION Oil Cook-stove keeps your kitchen cool and clean and does away with all the ash-pan, coal-hod drudgery of the coal range.

The NEW PERFECTION lights like gas, regulates like gas, and cooks like gas. It's gas stove comfort with kerosene oil.

Something New. An oven that becomes a fireless cooker merely by pulling a damper. Ask your dealer to show you the NEW PERFECTION No. 7, with fireless cooking oven; also the PERFECTION WATER HEATER. It gives you plenty of hot water, yet leaves you independent of the hot, sooty coal range.

Use Aladdin Security Oil or Diamond White Oil to obtain the best results in oil Stoves, Heaters and Lamps.

How Mrs. Harrod Got Rid of Her Stomach Trouble

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness after eating and from pain in the stomach," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.

Young man, what do you mean to be?

"Take time—consider. You are the designer; you must select the pattern for your future. A hasty start won't hasten success. Each time you change your mind and shift your occupation you must re-learn and re-earn. Until you elect a definite course you must accept guidance."
